

Presentation

There are three main perfect forms: present perfect, past perfect and future perfect. These can be combined with the continuous aspect to form present perfect continuous, past perfect continuous and future perfect continuous.

Present perfect simple

The present perfect looks back from now to actions or situations in the past that are in some way connected to the present. We use the present perfect simple:

- to talk about completed actions that are connected to the present: The film has started. (= it's on now)
- with time expressions that mean up to now, e.g. today, this week: Have you spoken to Max this week?

We also use the present perfect simple with be, have, know and other stative verbs to talk about unfinished actions and situations that continue until now: We've known about the problem for a while.*

Present perfect continuous

We use the present perfect continuous:

- to talk about something that started in the past and is continuing now: He's been talking on the phone for over an hour.*
- to talk about how we've been spending time recently: Sorry, I haven't called. I've been working really hard.

Past perfect simple

The past perfect looks back from a point in the past to an earlier event. We use the past perfect simple to talk about:

- single, completed events: Somebody stole her car because she had left it unlocked.*
- repeated actions, when we give the number of times the action is repeated: I'd looked at five guitars before I decided which one to buy.*

Past perfect continuous

We use the past perfect continuous to talk about how long an action, or series of actions, was in progress: He was exhausted because he'd been travelling for 24 hours.*

Future perfect simple

We use the future perfect simple to talk about an action that is going to be completed at or before a given time in the future: They'll have finished repairing the bridge by next week.*

Future perfect continuous

We use the future perfect continuous to talk about how long an action will have been in progress before a given time. It emphasizes the fact that the action will take place over an extended period of time: By the end of this year, I'll have been working here for 25 years.*
