

Presentation

Use the present continuous:

- to talk about temporary events and actions in progress at the time of speaking:
The bus is coming!
- To talk about things that are in progress around the time of speaking, but not necessarily at that exact moment:
The buses aren't stopping at the station this week.
- to talk about a changing situation:
Public transport is getting really expensive!
- with always to emphasize a repeated action (which is sometimes annoying):
They're always digging up these roads.

Time expressions

We often use the present continuous tense with time expressions such as: now, at the moment, currently, today, this week, nowadays, etc.

Present simple or present continuous?

Present simple	Present continuous
Facts/things that are generally true: The bus stops at the train station.	Happening now: The bus is coming!
Routines: The bus comes every day.	Events in progress around the time of speaking: The buses aren't stopping at the station this week.
Regular change: Public transport gets more expensive every year.	Changing situation: Public transport is getting more expensive.
With always to talk about habits and routines: They always dig up the road in the summer.	With always for repeated (and often annoying) actions: They're always digging up the road in the summer.

Exercises

- 1 Look at the pictures. Complete the descriptions of the people using the present continuous. Use the negative form where necessary.

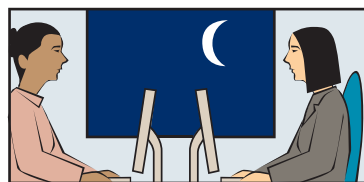

- 1 Lots of people are looking for (look for) work these days.

- 3 This shop always/sell clothes at half price!

- 2 He (study) for his English exam.

- 4 They (work) late every day this week.
